

Johari Window

	Known to Self	Not Known to Self
Known to Others	Open Parts of ourselves we share freely	Blind Parts of ourselves we are blind to, but others can see
Not Known to Others	Hidden Parts of ourselves that we hide – associated with shame and guilt	Unknown Undeveloped and underdeveloped creative potential for both self-expression and relating to others

	Known to Self	Not Known to Self
Known to Others	Open •Increased understanding of self and self needs, increased self-expression and increased accurate understanding and awareness of others' needs, in relation to getting one's own needs met. •Growth in capacity to be with and connect with self and others •Decrease in relationship-related anxiety and depression
Not Known to Others		